Germany: Car driven into crowd at Magdeburg Christmas market

At least two people have been killed, according to the head of the state government. Police have taken a Saudi national into custody.

A car was driven into a crowd of people at a Christmas market in the central German city of Magdeburg on Friday night.

Two people have been killed, according to Saxony-Anhalt's state premier, Reiner Haseloff, who said at least 60 more had been injured, many seriously.

Haseloff said police have taken the driver, a Saudi national, into custody and believe he acted alone. Magdeburg police also announced an arrest online.
