

House approves $895B defense bill with military pay raise, ban on transgender care for minors

A massive $895 billion defense spending bill cleared the House of Representatives on Wednesday with provisions that would ban transgender medical treatments for minors and raise military pay.

The must-pass legislation to fund the military for the next fiscal year passed in bipartisan 281-140 vote, with 200 Republicans and 81 Democrats supporting the measure.

The bill, known as the National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA), faces an end-of-month deadline to clear Congress and be signed into law by President Biden.
