

Top doc flips stance on COVID vax after suffering severe personal harm

Testifies to lawmakers of 'devastating' impact, cover-up by medical regulators

A prominent physician in Australia - formerly president of the Australian Medical Association and a member of Parliament - has delivered explosive testimony to Parliament, declaring that she and her wife both have been seriously harmed by the COVID-19 vaccines.

Dr. Kerry Phelp further contends the true rate of adverse events is much higher than the medical establishment and media are acknowledging, because of underreporting and "threats" from medical regulators, reports Australia's News.au.com.

"This is an issue that I have witnessed first-hand with my wife who suffered a severe neurological reaction to her first Pfizer vaccine within minutes, including burning face and gums, paraesthesiae, and numb hands and feet, while under observation by myself, another doctor and a registered nurse at the time of immunisation," Phelps, 65, told Parliament's Long Covid inquiry
