

Trump signs 'No Men in Women's Sports' executive order

White House press secretary Karoline Leavitt said before the order was signed that 'gender ideology insanity is over'

President Donald Trump on Wednesday signed the "No Men in Women's Sports" executive order, fulfilling one of his major campaign promises of keeping biological men out of girls and women's sports.

Trump signed the executive order on National Girls and Women in Sports Day, which celebrates female athletes in women's sports and those who are committed to providing equal access to sports for all females.

"This doesn't have to be long. It's all about common sense," Trump said before signing the order, adding that "women's sports will be only for women."
