

Watch: Supreme Court Justice Ketanji Brown Jackson Sings on Broadway in Reimagined Queer 'Romeo and Juliet'

Supreme Court Justice Ketanji Brown Jackson appeared on stage Saturday in her one-time-only debut in Broadway's Queer & Juliet, a reimagined queer musical production of Romeo and Juliet.

Jackson strutted her stuff, dancing, singing, and acting in the production on December 14 at the Stephen Sondheim Theatre, becoming the first sitting Supreme Court Justice to appear in a Broadway play.

Of her one-night role, Jackson says, "I think that it means that anything is possible."
