

Weekly Update by Mark Armstrong - April 26, 2024

Greetings from Tyler,

To hear the mainstream tell it, Trump's in a lot of trouble. They better hope he is, because it won't go well for them if he's not. The court cases are cobbled together using a combination of laws to try to prove their point. Constitutional scholars say no prosecution like this has ever been brought to court, and good luck this time. But they are keeping him off the campaign trail.

It kind of strikes us as intentional, that they brought these court cases while campaigning is going on. They better hope they get him, otherwise he might not be so benevolent the next time around.

The pretender shows up, too often, to let us all know he's not doing so well. No one has ever tried acting as president at his age. There comes a time... If you ask me they're trying intentionally to mess things up so badly they can't be fixed. Every time you consult the news we've got some new problem that just might finish us off. I can't help but wonder if that's not the goal. Maybe I'm wrong, but it seems Obama advisors are telling him what to say and how to say it. He's got to have them in agony as they watch him try to do what he's told. We don't even want to know what's going on behind the scenes.

We've just sent the new WATCH magazine to the printer, and we hope you'll like it. We feature the eclipse on the cover. Talk about making you feel small! It was an incredible event that scientists have all figured out. Still, being able to see the activity of the sun outside the blockage of the moon sort of puts you in your place. We feel sorry for those who think this universe behaves as it does out of pure chance. Preposterous!

There was a recent article showing Palestinians at the beach. Apparently it's hot, and they thought they'd go and cool off. But they're wearing their street clothes! Can you imagine going to the beach in a purple suit, or wrapped in layers of cloth? Must be a cultural thing. You wouldn't understand.

The scandal is that hostages are still being held. Negotiations have not yielded the desired results, so the war goes on. The American administration keeps holding press conferences as if they hold the keys to Israel's next move. They don't. But they act like they know what they're talking about, and they're usually embarrassed and angry. Maybe they're about to change sides.

Other than that, most everything is how we left it. The war in Ukraine is still going on, at great expense as well as the war in Gaza, and we're still being invaded with the blessing of the current administration. You wonder if it can be fixed, short of the second coming. My take is that they're trying to foul up as much as possible, more than can be fixed in four years. We can only hope the evil-doers don't succeed. We love our country and always have. The more we see of the world and the insanity that goes on, we can only thank the Creator that He put us here, out of harm's way. It may not always be this way.

P. S. We had a great Passover service, with a nearly full auditorium. The rest of the Holy Day festivities will occur in the few days ahead. Thanks to all who observe these ceremonies with us. Don't you wish everybody did?
