Greetings from Tyler,

The Pope's out of the hospital. It was a bad case of bronchitis we're told. This little twerp is bad enough, and we'll hate to see what follows. Jane Fonda says anti-abortion activists should be murdered. Really? The mainstream thinks that's completely acceptable.

Prime Minister Netanyahu is in similar trouble to Trump. They've got to destroy him. Where have we heard that before? Meanwhile, the rockets, missiles and retaliation are in the news again. We've got Russia and China to worry about now. It would be unfortunate if the Middle East catches on fire again.

China and Brazil have just agreed to STOP using U. S. dollars in their transactions. Warnings abound that the U. S. dollar is on the way down.

Gavin Newsom, Governor of California, has formed a new political organization. He plans to travel to red states to let us know how "authoritarian" they are. He's got to push back on everything that's disrupting the left's plans. Wasn't California the most authoritarian state in the nation during the Covid scare? It may still be going on, for all we know. Everybody but Newsom was locked down.

The media did all they could to keep from revealing that the horrible school shooting was done by a woman that thought she should be regarded as a man. After all, who ever heard of a female shooting up a school? But this was a "Christian" school in a state that was outlawing trans ideology for little kids. It looks like these trans dudes are becoming a danger. There are stories about them engaging in firearms training. Can you imagine? A deranged woman shot up the school in Tennessee, thinking apparently that she was a man. The "community" isn't getting the acceptance they thought, so they want to kill themselves and take as many with them as possible.

We'll stop going through contortions over this trans business. You notice, you almost never see them. There's a reason for that. Nobody can pull it off! But these "communities" are feeding on each other's brain fog. They must go through mental fits, because they just can't fool people, and that makes them so mad that they've decided the only course of action is to kill us.

Have you heard of Aunti Fa? The meme has a dude in a wig wielding a machine gun. That ought to show us. These guys are real women, or they'll kill whoever disagrees. That ought to work out great.

The NY indictment may just have opened Pandora's Box. Does this mean that State officials can charge and prosecute national politicians for any supposed crime? If that's the case, Katy bar the door. We've seen (how many?) national politicians get away with all kinds of shenanigans, and if the national agencies wouldn't think it prudent for whatever reason, they skate. You've seen, that's not exactly the case with the guy who wants to save the country. The media is deadly serious about the consequences when it's that guy.

Every news channel says his name non-stop. They've got panels on nearly every show calculating how many years behind bars it will take to atone for the supposed crimes. Did they miss what's happened the last several years? We've lost count of the investigations, the impeachments, the public denunciations. But the bullets seem to bounce off. At some point we begin to wonder how much the mainstream actually hates, or better defined, FEARS him. The two are related. In speeches he says he's going to fire every last one of them. Wouldn't that be something?

There's not enough paper or ink in the office to run down everything that's going wrong. Turn on the news, if you dare. Chances are it'll put you in a rotten mood. We've got to push back, and we are. Things had better take a turn for the better, and soon, or we're in for some real trouble that will require the Second Coming. We want to experience our kids and grandkids, and live to see them enjoy the kind of freedoms we had. But things are going South in a hurry. Even Glenn Beck called for fasting and prayer this morning. If we don't get a strong leader who believes in our founding but quick, we're going to hate to see what becomes of our beloved United States.
