

Weekly Update by Mark Armstrong - February 28, 2025

Greetings from Tyler,

It's happening too fast. You couldn't keep up if you were trying. The orders coming out of the new Administration are in line with the promises made on the campaign trail. President Trump has been saying what he will do in his speeches. I don't know if you watched the appearance in Davos, but it was priceless. He wrecked them. How good is it to have a guy that doesn't need a teleprompter?

There's a pervading sense that the U. S. is back, directing things, not just waiting to see what happens. There has been a blizzard of executive orders. It's a full-time job just to keep up. Fauci has been denied secret service protection, but he'll still need protection, so he's reportedly hired his own.

So many documents are due to be released. Several that are no doubt already the theme for books. How many books have been written about the very things that are released, and how many theories will be tested?

America is back with a vengeance, so to speak. We don't know how many reports will be constructed in the coming days and weeks. I don't know if we could stand everything at once. Maybe there will be a schedule. The experts will pour over everything released and let us know. They'll probably prove their theories with the real thing, which nobody can deny.

There are all kinds of reports about AI, and what it will bring in the future. It seems things are speeding up and changing. AI better not do all the things they're worried about. There is dangerous territory here. Some may regard it as the answer to everything. We'll have to be on our guard, lest it lead us off into the wrong direction.

I just heard the exchange in the Oval Office where Trump, Vance and Zelensky were having it out. Call me crazy, but I've never had a very high opinion of the little guy, running around the world asking for money. Trump told Zelensky he was going to start WW III over his arguments. If you look at the Drudge Report right now they may still have the photo up. It shows Trump and Vance with their hands out trying to get Zelensky to stop talking. It didn't work.

Who knows what's going to happen. Trump's trying to get Putin's cooperation. There's something about Ukraine's mineral deposits. I think Trump wants them, or he's trying to figure out a way for Ukraine to pay for everything we've sent so far. This needs to be resolved before it spreads.

It looks like Israel has carte blanche to go after Hamas, no holds barred. I've been trying to tell everybody, these people don't think like we do. You hear some logic trotted out, that doesn't sound logical. The Arabs conducted a sneak attack, and now they want everything to be fair. It's too late! They've been holding hostages underground, and they look like holocaust survivors.

The Arabs think they sound reasonable. They're wrong. They can get loud and stomp away, but that doesn't make them right. So far they've succeeded in blowing up Gaza and sending everybody who lived there to some tent city.

Trump is determined to have peace! We certainly don't need anyone getting us into WW III.

The pope's not looking too good. He's pronouncing the Catholic's version of the afterlife, and getting ready to go. Maybe he'll resign. Then again, that's not the papal way. He's said a mouthful, and was apparently on board with the gay movement. He's not long for this world, but the same "people" who voted for him will probably vote in somebody else who will peeve us. They, the Catholics at the Vatican don't have much to celebrate. We, on the other hand, are thanking God for turning this county around.
