

Weekly Update by Mark Armstrong - September 20, 2024

Greetings from Tyler,

So they've tried to kill former President Trump again. Trying to return America to its founding principles is dangerous work. We don't even know if it's possible, things are so crazy. The media thinks it has the high ground and that we Americans trust them. Wrong. The internet may be evil in a lot of ways, but now everyone can put something out there, and viewer beware. These networks have their trusted anchors, and they think they can tell us almost anything with a straight face. But they're losing clout and credibility.

The rapper with the last name Combs is under arrest, and said to be suicidal. They must have the goods on him, whatever he may have done. It was all fun and games for a while, but then reality bites. His mogul days may be a thing of the past, but how many other idiots are waiting in the wings?

Trying to figure out the Ukrainian mess has given me a headache. Somehow, Zelensky running around the world with hat in hand is getting old. We don't know who's winning, if anybody. Will Ukraine join NATO? There have been so many massacres over there it's unbelievable. Mass graves have been dug up, and the evidence of brutality is not for the weak of heart.

Maybe somebody is going to have to tell me how the election turns out. It's getting pretty hard to watch. The left wing is absolutely apoplectic about what a bad guy Donald Trump is. To hear one of them rant is downright scary.

The news that Israel somehow detonated terrorist pagers remotely is making the rounds. They did it in the middle of the day, when they would be in pockets. Right now they're trying to track down how this was pulled off. The next day walkie talkies exploded all over Lebanon. The explosions killed several, wounded thousands and now what? Maybe the parties will be more willing to negotiate? This situation has gone on nearly a year, and Israel seems determined to make sure it never happens again, at least for a long time. Israel may have been underestimated. Who knows what device might blow up next? Israel has killed a bunch of the leadership, and the terrorists keep getting farther from their goal.

You see the pictures of these guys, and they look like regular people, but the hatred runs deep, and they've got it bad.

We've got our own troubles. This may be the calm before the storm. Whatever the outcome, the other side is going to cry foul. All kinds of theories are being floated about what might happen in the event of one outcome or another.

The polls are tied or nearly tied according to the media. How can full stadiums compare to a Kamala rally? No explanations are forthcoming, certainly not in the mainstream media. They better not try to steal this one, or it will be anarchy. People have been forgiving, non-combative and don't need any trouble. But we have trouble anyway, and if the mainstream, global-warming media thinks they can push the country around, they might just get a rude awakening.

Right now our country is being invaded. They're coming from all over the world. What are you, racist? When has any nation on earth allowed millions of people to walk in? That would be never. But we're racist, I guess against the whole world, if we're not thrilled.

Everybody is still arguing about the debate and Kamala's body language. They've floated the idea that she may have had an earpiece. Some of the poses, we could have done without. Knowledgeable people are saying the debate was a tie or she won. But the news media is getting harder to believe. Hang on tight, because this is for all the chips. Regular people are no longer amused.

Mark